Influence of Nitrous Oxide.

It was the first and only time I ever took nitrous oxide gas. The next tooth out will have been the second. The rubber bag was attached. I lay back in the chair, composed. The mouthpiece was applied. The first sensations of the gas were peculiarly peculiar. You know how it is yourself. Completely under its influence, I became an immense bombshell, and was placed in one of the largest of siege morturs. It was before Yorktown. The lanyard was pulled, and the mortar discharged with a terrific, to me stanning, report. The shell—that is, I—was fired aloft with the velocity of a well offed streak of lightning. SATURDAY EVE., DEC. 3, 1887.

Congress will convone on Monday.

PRESIDENT GREVY sont his resignation to the French Assembly yesterday, and a session of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies will be held to-day to elect his successor. There are as many candidates hungering for the French Presidency as there are for the Illinois governorship.

SENATOR-RELECT CHANDLER declares he does not believe there will be any tariff legislation in Congress in the coming session, because, he says, "in a critical juncture the Democrats never agree on anything." This proves that the Senator's researches into Democratic history have been conscientious and exhaustive.

THE general belief in New York City is that the decision of the Appellate Court in the Jake Sharp case will prevent the successful prosecution of other boodlers, and that the ones who fied to Canad) will be perfectly safe in returning to New York.

During October of this year, 43,609 European immigrants arrived in the United States, an increase of nearly 5,000 over the number that came in Ostober of last year. This shows that the people of foreign lands have a very flattering conception of the advantages of this country; but it also suggests the necessity of early action to guard those advantages against evident danger of abuse and subversion.

New York Tribune: Who can despair of the republic if its salvation depends on parties? Not less than eight; parties cast votes in the last election in this state. Probably few people were aware that there was a No. 8 and that it bore the pretentions name of the National Reform party. Its precise principles we do not happen to be familiar with. But, as Mr. Toot would say, it's of no consequence this party cast the sam-total of 2 votes for one state candidate, 3 for another and 9 for two others. It is not a factor to be seriously reckoned with yet.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Mr. Cleveland's friends in Congress again propose to "pitch Randall over into the Republican camp" unloss he supports the revenue reduction measure which the admiristration will propose. The President may or may not be aware of the fact that thirty protectionist Domocrats will sit in the next house of representatives. It is reasonably certain, however, that he knows this faction will number at least twenty, and that he also knows that the

There is now an almost daily rapetition in detail of the news about the preposed Cabinet changes, says the Philadelphia Press. Everybody pretends to know all about what is to happen, who is to be appointed, and so forth. This is, doubtless, without authority. As now understood, the only thing decided upon is that Don M. Dickenson, the Detroit hustler, is to go down to Washington and furnish imagination and ideas for an administration which it is proclaimed has no more of either than a clam. Under such circumstances it is not probable that the President or unybody else in Washington knows what is going to be done. The only authentic news about the future of the country must come from Detroit, until the imagination and ideas hustler gets to Washington.

A DARREULLY prepared table in the Now York Tribune indicates the source from which the vote in that city for the ticket headed by Henry George was drawn. The basis of comparison with the figures for last year is the vote for State Controller; probably the fairest that could be taken. Last year it is estimated that 41,821 Democrats and 26,289 Republicans voted for Mr. George; this year the falling off in the vote of the two parties as compared with the votes cast for Judge of the Court of Appeals in 1886 shows that 21,388 Democrats and 17,303 Republicans supported the Labor candidates. That is, almost two-thirds of the Republicans attracted by Mr. George's theories remained true to their new love, while about one-half of the Democrats returned to their party ranks. The reasons for their hastening back are not open to question; but the fact is an interesting and instructive one, and one to be taken into account in estimating political movements in the future.

It is wise to provide against emergencies which are hable to arise in every family. In sudden attacks of cold, croup, asthma, etc., a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will prove a never failing Grevy Resigns the French Presidency, Blaming the Deputies for the Crisis.

Great Excitement in the French Capital -- Serious Street Fight There Last Night.

Lord Mayor Sullivan Taken to Prison--The Cutting Affair Causing Excitement in the City of Mexico.

France.

PRESIDENT GREVY RESIGNS. Paris, Dec. 2.—President Grevy has at last resigned the Presidency of the Republic. His letter of resignation was read in the Chamber of Deputies at half-past two this afternoon. Grevy says he re-gards the votes taken in the Chamber and Senate yesterday as a decisive demonstra-tion which necessitates his resignation. The services to the country which he ren-dered during the time in which peace prevailed are recalled in his message. He leaves the office with a sad heart, he says and be will not be responsible for future events. Tremendous crowds were in front of the building of the Chamber all morning. Traffic in the vicinity has been stopped by the police.

TEXT OF GREVY'S RESIGNATION.

The text of M. Grevy's message of resignation is as follows: "So long as I resignation is as torows: "So long as I had only to contend with the difficulties that have accumulated in my path, the aboate of the press, the abstention of the men whom the public voice called to my side, and the increasing impossibility to form a ministry, I struggled on and remained where duty bado me; but at the moment when public opinion, bottor informed, marked a change which gave we hope of forming a government, the Senate and Chamber of Deputies voted a double resolution, which, under the form of an adjournment to a fixed hour to await the President's promised message, is tanta-President's promised message, is tantamount to summoning the President to rosign. It would be my duty and right to resist, but under the circum-stances in which we are placed a conflict between the Executive and Parliament might ontail consequences which restrain me. Wisdom and natriotism command me to yield."

DOES IT PORTEND EVIL TO FRANCE.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—It is certainly remarkable that President Grevy should have resigned on the day which marks the anniversary of the two events which comprised the beginning and the successful ending of the coup de etat of Napoleon III.—his dissolution of the Assembly, December 2, 1851, and the establishment of the Imperial Monarchy, December ment of the Importal Monarchy, December 2, 1852. This circumstance is regarded by the Monarchists as a favorable omen to their cause, and the undoubted fact that M. Grevy had intended to defer the presentation and reading of his resignation until Monday, until the developments of Thursday made further postponement impossible, strengthened the conviction that Pervidence appears to the terridence appears to the providence appears to that Providence supervened to bring about the fall of the President of the last French Republic on the calendar day that witnessed the overthrow of the Republican system of government thirty-five years ago. This coincidence of dates does not, however, strike the Republicans as being twenty, and that he also knows that the Democratic plurality, on a full party vote, will be but fifteen. Under these circumstances, a moderate acquaintance with arithmetic will convince Mr. Cleveland that he tampers with Randali at his peril.

however, strike the Republicans as being at all wondertal or ominous, and it is not likely that any serious trouble will grow out of the crisis pending the election of M. Grevy's successor. Every possible precaution has been taken to prevent an outbroak, both in Paris and in the provinces, and nobody now believes that, beyond few street affraces which the authorities will not down the moment they thorities will put down the moment they begin, any trouble can occur. All of the Generals commanding corps and divisions, who have been visiting Paris within the last week, have juined their commands. General Boulanger took his departure to Clernout-Ferrand this morning, quieter and without exciting by his appearance in public the slightest demonstration. It is difficult to foresec the result of today's session of the Congress at Vorday's session of the Congress at Vor-sailles. M. De Freycinet has perhaps the best chances of election as matters look now, his partisans republiating M. Ferry Flouquet as second choice on the ground that the election of either would be infinited to an alliance between France and Russia, which now seems to the majority of the Republican states-men most desirable. The tone of Grevy's message, which seeks to include the responsibility for the present situation upon the Chamber of Deputies, will have the effect to coment the Republican groups and give the Moderates the best chance in the final transfer of votes from one cau-didate to another.

It is noteworthy that all of the French securities have commined firm, few of thom having sustained any decline whatsoever, and this circumstance has given increased confidence to these who believe that the country will emerge from the present period of confusion unscratched and without bloodshed.

SERIOUS RIOTING

PAIRS, Dec. 3.-Some serious rioting occurred in the Place do la Concordia last evening. The mounted guard charged the crowd and several revolver shots were fired at the police. Later they were reinforced with infantry and a fresh charge was made, when sixty persons were injured.

An Iowa Girl Tosses an Illinois Drum-time mor Overboard and Murries an Editor. FORT DODGE, Ia, 3.—A very happy mar

Four Dodow, Ia, 3.—A very happy mar riage has just occurred to this city having in it all the elements of a very delightful and amusing sensation. Miss Nettie Hull was the acknowledged belle in a city full of proty women. She was the youn rest daughter of Mrs. G. M. Hull, and has just turned her twentieth year. Her father, George M. Hull, a wealthy merchant, died about two years ago, and as Nettle put on mourning robes her sweet, sympathetic face became doubly attractive to her admirers. Nettle did not seem to care for the young men she had known from mirers. Notife did not seem to care for the young men she had known from childhood. Recently, however, while visiting at Rockford, Hi., she met Edgar H. Scott, a traveling salesman for the Forest City Furniture Company. Scott made love to her violently and visited her at her home. The engagement was announced, and the drummer was looked upon as a favored mortal.

nonneed, and the drammer was looked upon as a favored mortal.

There was one young man who had watched this love affair with a joalous eye. He had been the young lady's playmate, and as children they had been lovers. This was Charles Dancombe, son of John F. Dancombe, prominent in love achieve. Young Dancombe is abten of politics. Young Duncombo is editor of the Northwestern Darly Chronicle, and is one of the brightest new spaper mon in the State. Dencembe disliked to see a drummer come along and carry away the prize, and set about frastrating the marriage. He went to his mother, as he had always done, and told her his troubles. "Do you really want to marry Nettio?"

said she, putting her arms around her big boy's neck.

"I'll die if I don't," was the honest response.

Mrs. Duncombe assured him that he should marry the girl, come what would. Meantime the wedding of Mr. Scott and Miss Hull had been set for yesterday. The troussenu had been ordered, and altogether there was a critical state of affairs so far as Duncombe was concerned. Charles' mother, however, proved equal to the emergency. She announced a party in honor of Miss Unit. The party came off Wednesday night and a brilliant assembly of young people were pre-ent at the Dancombe mansion. As the evening were away the guests began to depart. When Miss Nettle retired to the cloak-room for her wrappings proparatory to going home, she found Mrs. Duncombe waiting for her. Mrs. Dun-combe called Miss Hull uside and ushered her into the presence of the young newspaper man and his sister, a girl about her own age. Young Duncombe proposed marriage, was accepted on the spot, and instantly there came from behind a curtain a minister of the gospel, who made then man and wife. A carriage was in waiting, and Charles Dancombe and his bride were do ven to the dep at and left at once for the Cast.

A plumber was sent to the house of a wealthy a ock broker, says an exchange, to execute some repairs. He was taken by the batter into the dising room, and was beginning his work when the lady of the house entered. "John," said she with a suspicious glance toward the plumber, "remove the silver from the sidebeard and lock it up at once." But the man of lead was in no wise disconcerted. "Tom," said he to his apprentice, who accompanied him, "take my watch and my o' in and these coppers home to dishones of a public at once. There seems to be dishones of public at once. There seems to be dishones of public at a care. There seems to be dishones of public at an once of the bouse."

$500 For Improvements at the Street Car Stables.

Passing the Citizens' street car stables on North street the other day the reporter saw that extensive improvements had been made under the direction of Manager Ferguson, who devotes his whole time to looking after the plant. The outlay aggregates $500, all for the comfort of the 50 horses and mules, and for the better accommodation of the public. The chief change at the stables is a new wooden floor, raised 213 feet above the ground. It is thoroughly braced, and beneath it has been placed field tile to remove dampness. New box stalls have been built and the woodwork throughout has been whitened, so that the stable is now a cheerful home for the unimals which pull the yellow chariots through

A $2,500 Fire.

The tenement property of T. J. Muleady at 811 East William street, caught fire this morning shortly after one o'clock and with the exception of the summer kitchen was totally destroyed. The department turned out, but as there was no fire plug on William street beyond the Central road, the firomen attached to a plug on. Morgan street, running the hose over the railroad track. Just as water began to flow, a north-bound-passenger train came slong and run over the hose, cutting it in two. The train was not flygged in time to prevent the accident. Had there been a hydrant east of the railroad the property would Java Coffees, have been sayed. But for the drizzling rain and the help of the buck's brigade the Risley residence and the one occupied. by the Muleady facedy would have been destroyed. The dwelling destroyed was valued at $1,500. It was insured in the Northwestere National of Milwankee for $800, and was occupied by Witham Jolly and tanaly. At admight Mrs. Jolly got up to repleash the fire in the diamignous, and an hour later the fire broke out. The alarm was given by a lame boy in the house, and Mr. Jolly barely had time to escape with his whiskers, sugged in getting out. THREE BLUE HUSSARS.

A Curious Incident Which Might Have Prolonged the Franco-Prussian War. Interview with One of the Daring Ad-

Among the many who read with interest the review of Mr. E. B. Washburne's last literary work, "Recollections of a Minister to France," was Mr. Albert D.

Levinger, a prominent gentleman who is now staying in this city. In the review special reference was made to the singular fact that Paris after the Franco-Prussian war was first entered by three hussars, war was first entered by three hussars, and not, as is generally supposed, by 30,-600 Prussian troops in a body. This curious incident, which proved to be of but minor importance, but which might have ended the armistice and prolonged the war, seems to have escaped all other historians but Mr. Washburne. Evidently unaware of the circumstances attending this singular and hitherto unexplained episode Mr. Washburne dismisses it in a paragraph and incorrectly illustrates the blue horsemen as emerging from the Arc de Triomphe. In the review if was said that the treaty of peace provided for the admission on March 1, 1871, of 30,000. Prussans into the capital. But they did the admission on March 1, 1871, of 30,004 Prussaus into the capital. But they did not all come together.

On the contracy, Paris may be said to have been taken possession of, strange as it may appear, by three blue bassars. On the morning of March 5, at 9 o'rlock, they rade in at the Porte Maillot, proceeded up the avenue of the Grand Army and walked their horses slowly down the magnificent avenue of the Champs Elysees with carbines cocked and finger upon the trigger, three horsenen, the sole heralds or representatives of the trememlous conquering host that had overthrown France.

One of these linearies are the remainded con-quering host that had overthrown France. One of these linearies was Mr. Levinger, then a cadet sergeant in the Thirteenth Blue Hussars. The second was Baron von Jageman a lieutenant in the same regiment, and the third was a private, who acted as orderly. Your correspondent, learning of Mr. Levinger's connection with the affair, sought an interview, in the course of which Mr. Levinger said:

"On March 1 the second, third and fourth squadrons of my regiment left Versailles about 4 o'clock in the morning.

Versalles about 4 o'clock in the morning. The troops which were to enter Paris had left the night before and were quartered near the Longehamps, so as to be fresh the next morning for the review and the entry of Paris. To let as many corps as possible enter the city among the stipulated 30,000 men only the first battalion of each infeature regiment and the first of each infantry regiment and the first squadron of each cavalry regiment were selected to compose the occupying force. When we reached the Longonnups the offizers were called forward and told that the emperor would review the froeps and that the men were present to preyent at-that the first were present to prevent attentats or any attempt upon his life.

"We were ordered to ride patronilles to the fortifications of Paris, and not to allow any civillan, whoseever he might be to remain in the Bois de Boulogne, I role the first patronille, and found several resolutions to the list.

Paris.

'You are only joking,' he replied.

'I assured him that I had really been within the fortifications. He was a man who was fond of adventure, and he immethe first Prussians in Paris.

"The Arc de Triomphe was closed with heavy chains and deep ditches were dug before it, so that we could not pass through it, and by doing so painfully wound French national pride. Crowds of people assembled at the Arc, and when they saw us approaching they shouted.

'Assassins! Prussians!' and crowded us so closely that I drew my saber in anticipation of an attack.

"Por God's sake, Levinger.' said Jageman, don't get in a row. Let us return. If it become known that we entered Paris against orders we will be court martialed. It does not matter so much to you, for you will leave the army after the war, but it will ruin my malitary coreer.'

"We had received imperative orders to ride as far as the fortifications only, and, seeing the wisdom of his counsel, I assented. We turned around and rode to the gate of the Bois de Boulogne. When we entered the Bois we met Director of Pield Police Stieber and about 100 men. We told him where we had been, and he asked in astonishment: What did you see?

What did they say to you?"
"Some threw a little mud at us and we were paid few compliments.' I replied. One of Director Stieber's officers wanted to go in with the director, but the latter
